

Intermountain Electric Joins TEGG Network

Franchise in Denver, Colo., completes TEGG Start-Up Program

The team at Intermountain Electric, Inc., recently completed its start-up program to represent TEGG in several markets.

More than 25 employees attended the kickoff meeting and training sessions provided by Jason Huber and Jeffrey Buennemeyer, who are each TEGG Area Vice Presidents, while even more employees from Intermountain Electric's Reno, Nev., and North Dakota locations participated virtually.

During the start-up process, Huber and Buennemeyer discussed building a TEGG Business Plan with Intermountain Electric, while providing sales advice and coaching tips.

Huber noted several team members attended TEGG's Parallel Training course in December, and more plan to attend a future session.

"They are really enthused and focused on driving new customer growth throughout the entire company," Huber said. "Everyone, from upper management to field employees, is engaged and will incorporate the TEGG system into the Intermountain culture, and is ready to promote TEGG Predictive Testing and Preventative Maintenance agreements in Colorado, Wyoming, North Dakota and the Reno, Nev., area."

Want more TEGG news and announcements? Stay up-to-date with TEGG Mobile by visiting TEGG.com/news from your computer or mobile device.

Several employees attended a kick-off meeting and discussions at Intermountain Electric in Denver, Colo., in February, 2017.