

Aschinger Electric Company and Principal Emily Martin Honored with 2019 Women-Owned Business Enterprise Award

St. Louis County government honored Aschinger Electric Company and Principal Emily Martin with the 2019 Women-Owned Business Enterprise Award for “outstanding business acumen, industry leadership and community service.”

Aschinger Electric Company, which has about 170 employees, received the award in September.

“Emily Martin leads by example,” said Doug Martin, executive vice president of the St. Louis Chapter of the National Electrical Contractors Association. “She’s a leader in both her business and our NECA chapter and devotes countless hours to improving our industry and the St. Louis community.”

In addition to being president of Aschinger Electric Company, Martin is president of the St. Louis Chapter of the National Electrical Contractors Association (NECA) and serves on the AGC of Missouri Diversity Committee and the NECA National Diversity Engagement Council.

She also serves on the St. Louis County Electrical Examining Board, which oversees electrical contracting licensing in the St. Louis County. She is also an executive board member of AAIM Employer’s Association and serves on the board of Habitat for Humanity – St. Louis and the capital campaign committee for Tower Grove Park.

According to the St. Louis Business Journal, Aschinger Electric Company is amongst the region’s largest electrical contractors and women-owned businesses. The company is also one of the nation’s Top 600 Specialty Contractors, according to Engineering News Record.

Aschinger Electric Company has been a TEGG franchise since 1997.

Click here for more information.

Want more TEGG news and announcements? Stay up-to-date with TEGG Mobile by visiting TEGG.com/news from your computer or mobile device.

